In this lesson, we are going to focus more on organizing your soloing ideas into a few key phrases. This is what is called 'making a statement' and the idea is to repeat that idea throughout your solo. In our jam session, I am going to play a repeated phrase over the I and IV chords and than finish it off with a solo statement over the V chord.

Now that we know what the C minor scale is, we will practice it in order to make it useful. Scale practice can be tedious. But without doing it, it can be very difficult to build the skills necessary to play many other things on the guitar; for example leads or solos. What we are aiming for here is a systematic way of approaching scale practice.
