Tests: Based on the theory and practical classes attended by the students, we conduct periodical assessment tests. Tests are a significant part of our training program and are of two types, written and practical. The former are conducted as per the schedule while the latter are held only when students have gained enough exposure to scripting programs associated with Embedded Systems.

One of the most complex tasks for the cybercriminals is to ensure their malicious code goes undetected by antivirus and achieves its goal. For this, they have invested a lot on more complex infection processes, going beyond the traditional phishing and using techniques where the malicious payload is hidden in encrypted files – even using a known file format.
