Although it's one of the most important aspects of electrical design and installation, grounding continues to be one of the least understood and most misinterpreted concepts in the industry. It's also one of the most expensive when errors are made. The dollar value of equipment in-operation and/or loss not to mention the potential liability associated with ground-fault arcing can be staggering.

Frequently asked questions on grounding and ground-fault ...

AFCI protection is required by the 2017 National Electrical Code® (NEC) for 15 and 20 amp circuits that serve outlets and devices in all areas of new residential construction, excluding bathrooms, garages, and outside areas. In addition to new construction, when receptacles are replaced in areas where AFCI protection is now required, the replacement receptacle must have AFCI protection.
