Many states are now projecting their future needs for skilled workers. California, Georgia, Michigan,

Maine, and Nevada are examples of many states that are building models of how many additional high school diplomas, Associate degrees, and Bachelor degrees will be needed in the next 10-30 years.

Education and Workforce Policy for the Future

In other circles, "worthwhile learning" is expanded to include vocational and workplace skills. For example, the Secretary's Commission on Achieving Necessary Skills (SCANS, 1992) focused on one aspect of schooling they felt was missing: what they called the "learning a living" system.
