Optics is the branch of physics that studies the behaviour and properties of light, including its interactions with matter and the construction of instruments that use or detect it. Optics usually describes the behaviour of visible, ultraviolet, and infrared light. Because light is an electromagnetic wave, other forms of electromagnetic radiation such as X-rays, microwaves, and radio waves ...

Statistical Inference (and What is Wrong With Classical Statistics) Scope. This page concerns statistical inference as described by the most prominent and mainstream school of thought, which is variously described as 'classical statistics', 'conventional statistics', 'frequentist statistics', 'orthodox statistics' or 'sampling theory'.

A speckle pattern is an intensity pattern produced by the mutual interference of a set of wavefronts. This phenomenon has been investigated by scientists since the time of Newton, but speckles have come into prominence since the invention of the laser and have now found a variety of applications. The term speckle pattern is also commonly used in the experimental mechanics community to describe ...
