I am digitizing all my (now-deceased) mother's old VHS-C cassette tapes of family videos. I wanted to share them with family using the "private" setting, but YouTube deleted several of the videos for having clips of the kids (as babies) in the bathtub, or having copyrighted music playing on the radio in the background.

Most of us are fairly generous people, and we want to help a family member or friend when we can. But the fact is, a person who can't get a personal loan from a traditional source often has damaged credit or no credit, both of which make this borrower a greater credit risk. (There are also loans for bad credit, but perhaps this person has yet to apply for one.)
